A new area of activity, marked by research into the properties of stainless steel and its processing. This has enabled the creation of abstract small architectural forms. Their placement will enliven the perception of urban space and create local points of attraction in densely built environment. The aerial structure will be near passers-by on a daily basis, filling their everyday thoughts with a new conceptual dimension.

The laconic sculpture creates a sense of frozen tranquillity filled with effortless simplicity. With its perfectly polished surface and no visible seams, it will showcase the elusive mood of the city: reflecting the surrounding landscape, the clouds above or the lights of the city at night. It consists of hundreds of welded moulded plates of flexible stainless steel. Thanks to this labour-intensive processing, the shining sculpture, which weighs up to 1 tonne, appears light and fragile. This impression of a kind of man-madeness is the best compliment to the months-long work of a team of professionals.
