The Hoflik bar table is inspired by the shape of the Coupe Glass for sparkling sweet wines, which was common at the beginning of the 20th century. The table was created by interpreting this skilful glass silhouette into a functional object with an attractive design. Its sturdy frame is made of a steel tube of two diameters and a solid base obtained by laser cutting. The seamless joints of the refined construction, showcase the beauty in the details. The round table top made of natural wood, creates an overall sense of balance as well as a tactile pleasure with its natural texture.

The name Hoflik is Frisian for "politely", characterising the respectful treatment of guests. The table can be used in private dining rooms and loggias as well as in public dining areas, conference rooms and lobbies. With compact overall dimensions and comfortable height, the table provides an opportunity to stand during a lunch break, a work flyer or informal dialogue over a cup of coffee. Such activity is especially relevant in today's world, when a sedentary lifestyle is the overwhelming norm.
